John Dumas, President and CEO, SCI

Shared leadership is a collaborative approach where expertise is leveraged across teams ensuring diverse perspectives are considered. However, it does not mean that every decision requires a group vote or a committee approval.

While consultation and communication are essential, decision making is ultimately driven by functional area experts. A small, empowered team is responsible for making informed decisions efficiently while ensuring alignment with broader organizational goals.

By embracing this, we will increase our impact and effectiveness, clarify roles, create a culture of trust, strengthen SCI's strategic alignment, and drive measurable results that advance our mission.
